as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him up.

Mrs. Low was sitting in her parlor last night, and called her servant, Lizzie Morell, to instruct her in regard to her household duties.

While the women were talking a pet dog rushed out into the hallway and began barking. Mrs. Low and the girl went out to learn the cause. As they stepped out of the parlor a man's arms encircled their waists. After embracing them the fellow made good his escape.

The women ran out upon the street and called for help. Several neizhbors reached the premises, and the police were notified of the affair by telephone. Capt. Early and a squad of officers hurried to the house and found all the doors and windows secured. Nobody saw the man reave by the front door.

The girl told the police that a young man of her acquaintance had left the fouse just before sac was called into the parlor, and she is certain that she locked the door after he went out.
